

The Université Paris-Sorbonne opened its doors in Abu Dhabi in the United Arab Emirates in October 2005.

Open to both genders and secular, professors from the Sorbonne provide the same education as in Paris, leading to internationally recognized diplomas. To the left, Jean-Robert Pitte, President of the Université Paris-Sorbonne (Paris IV) and the Université Sorbonne-Abu Dhabi, with representatives from the Emirates and France of the Université Sorbonne of Abu Dhabi on the occasion of their visit to Paris last April.
